Certificate in Business and Commercial Law - Intermediate Level

Course Introduction

Business and commercial law forms the legal foundation upon which organizations operate, contract, trade, and manage risk.

Professionals working in commercial environments are increasingly expected to understand legal principles that govern business relationships, contractual obligations, regulatory compliance, and dispute management—even if they are not legal specialists.

To support this growing need for legal awareness, BOOST has developed the Certificate in Business and Commercial Law course for professionals who already possess a basic understanding of business operations and wish to deepen their legal awareness at an intermediate level. This program focuses on the practical application of business and commercial law concepts that directly affect organizational decision-making, contractual relationships, and commercial risk.

The course provides a structured overview of key legal principles governing contracts, commercial transactions, corporate responsibilities, and dispute resolution. Emphasis is placed on understanding legal rights and obligations, recognizing legal risks, and applying legal reasoning in everyday business scenarios.

Through practical explanations, applied examples, and scenario-based discussions, participants enhance their ability to engage confidently with legal issues, work more effectively with legal advisors, and support sound, compliant, and informed business decisions.
