Cross-Cultural Business Situations

Course Introduction

Managing a cross-cultural business is not an easy task to do. Business leaders must know how to balance the differences in culture, values and practices. In order to maximize the potential of the multi-cultural team, one must develop their management skills and understand various business situations in the context of different culture, beliefs and background.

This training course is designed to provide participants with an in-depth understanding of the cross-cultural business situations and concepts on managing a cross-cultural workplace environment. This course will highlight topics such as managing negotiations, leadership, communication, diversity and inclusion, multi-cultural teamwork, and motivation related situations in a cross-cultural business context.
