Certificate in Bids and Tender Management

Course Introduction

Tendering for goods, works, and services is a key part of the procurement cycle because the quality of the tendering activities directly affects the success of the procurement process as a whole. A number of interlinking skills are required to achieve optimal results, i.e., the effective coordination of the identification of need, writing tender documents and specifications, selecting tendering procedures, and evaluating responses.

This training course is designed to provide participants with the essential and relevant concepts, principles, and techniques to operate effectively in the modern, demanding commercial environment and to provide the necessary support to the organization during any Bid and Tender process.
